

SAYS MEN HUMILIATE WOMEN IN CITY TEST

Complaint Made to the Mayor of Treatment by Civil Service Commission.

SOME CANDIDATES FAINT

Dr. Moskowitz Declares Only Physicians Were Present—Denies Favoritism.

A letter signed only "Mrs. Mary W. O." which purports to be an open letter sent to Mayor Mitchell protesting against some of the features of the physical examinations for women conducted by the Civil Service Commission, has been received by THE SUN.

The Mayor sent his copy to Dr. Henry Moskowitz, president of the Civil Service Commission. He will not comment upon the allegations made in it until Dr. Moskowitz has made a report.

The letter deals with the adventures of (Mrs.) Mary W. O.'s sister in taking the physical examination for playground attendant on February 17. The features of examination, as related by (Mrs.) Mary W. O., follow:

"She was notified to appear for the physical examination on February 17, and the card stated that she was to be examined by her own sex, but the women and girls were herded together in one room (some two hundred) and compelled to remove their shoes and stockings in the presence of an officer, evidently a policeman, and appear before the male examiners and raise their clothing to their knees and exhibit their feet and legs. Several women fainted."

"They were notified to appear in gymnasium shoes and bloomers. This was all right, probably, for any athletic young girl to strut about in gymnasium shoes and bloomers, but can you imagine the widowed mothers who took this examination being compelled to wear bloomers and show their legs to the male examiners?"

The letter also said that four members of the committee appointed by Commissioner Moskowitz to conduct the practical test are conducting civil service schools, and that their pupils have a better chance of appointment than any one else.

Dr. Moskowitz said that it was true that the old examining room did not offer the best facilities for examinations, but the Civil Service Commission's new examining room in the Municipal Building was ready for use yesterday.

"No laymen were allowed into the rooms while the examination of any part of the women's anatomy was being held," said the Commissioner, "and the examinations were made by Dr. James Warbasse and his two assistants, Dr. Henry De Forest and Dr. Mary Crawford. A policeman was at the door of the room, but during the examination the door was closed."

"None of the four persons mentioned conduct schools for civil service work," Dr. Warbasse, head of the physical examination bureau, said that it was ridiculous to suppose that any men had been allowed to view any of the women who took the examination except during that part of the examination which the women took fully clothed.

SHOOT HERSELF AFTER TALK OVER TELEPHONE

Mrs. H. S. Stoll Tries to Die at End of Conversation With Unidentified Man.

Mrs. H. Stewart Stoll, an attractive young woman living with her husband at the Bonnie Brae, 524 West 169th street, shot herself yesterday immediately after she had talked for several minutes over the telephone with a man. She may die. Her husband, who is a salesman for C. S. Hammond, publisher at 20 Church street, has been away on a trip since January and is believed to be in Seattle, Wash.

Mrs. Eliza Petian, janitor of the building, who tends to the telephone switchboard, told the police that a man called at 4 o'clock and asked for Mrs. Stoll's apartment. Fifteen minutes later Mrs. Petian got the signal indicating that the conversation was over. A few minutes later the same man called again, but this time no one answered the telephone.

Mrs. Petian walked upstairs to Mrs. Stoll's apartment. There was no response to her knock, so she tried the door. It was locked. She then climbed the fire escape and entered the apartment by a window. On the floor near the telephone was Mrs. Stoll. In her hand was a revolver. There was a wound in her breast. An ambulance took her to Washington Heights Hospital. The bullet had entered just below the heart, had pierced the diaphragm and lodged in the lung. It was not located. Mrs. Stoll revived after the operation. She said the shooting was accidental.

GOETHALS SEES STAGE CANAL.

Is Interested at Hippodrome in Scene Depicting Panama.

Col. Goethals, builder of the Panama Canal, and a party of friends occupied boxes last night at the Hippodrome. Col. Goethals was interested in the stage presentation of the first ship passing through the canal—an American merchant vessel.

John P. Wilson, who plays the part of the Colonel in the scene, was introduced to Col. Goethals in his box.

$50,000 for Methodist Missions.

The Methodist Board of Foreign Missions announced another gift of $50,000 in cash yesterday, making a total of $410,000 received for special purposes in a little more than a year. Chief among these is a permanent fund to take care of aged missionaries. Most of these gifts have been anonymous.

PAGEANT AT THE WALDORF FOR UNEMPLOYED WOMEN

Well Known Persons Appear in Dancing and Historical Tableaux—Costly Art Works Used.

Copyright, Davis & Sanford. MISS ELSIE DE WOLFE.

With much splendor the eve of March 18 was celebrated last night in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria with a varied pageant for the benefit of the Conference on Unemployment Among Women. This entertainment was suggested by the recent Venetian pageant at the Fine Arts ball of February 20, and a more recent production of the morality play "Markandeya" which was given at the Plaza just before the beginning of Lent.

While it was hurriedly organized everything moved smoothly. There was no need of new costumes, as all the participants were prepared, and while the Venetian part of last night's programme was not a repetition, yet it suggested that of the earlier one given at the Hotel Astor. The morality play was founded on "The Castle of Perseverance," which had come down from the fifteenth century, and was produced with almost no change in the cast and with much attention to detail, under the direction of Francis H. Markoe.

Elsie de Wolfe Dances.

Just before the Venetian scenes there was a Louis XIV. divertissement entitled "Danse des grandes eaux de Versailles," a Masque of Splendor, which depicted the glory of Venice. This was in decided contrast to the seriousness and simplicity of the morality play.

Following this dance there was a classic ballet called "Pagan Festival." It had been arranged by Miss Janet Scudder, depicting a scene which might have been carved on an ancient Greek vase. There was the temple of love with a frieze of dancing figures of girls around a blazing altar. In this scene was introduced a lion cub, which acted very properly.

The dancers were Mrs. James B. Eustis, Mrs. Arthur S. Burden, Mrs. Allen Campbell, Mrs. Allen G. Wellman, Miss Frances

Breeze, Miss Rhoda Tanner, Miss Carmen de Gonzales and Miss Layman. Those who posed on the pedestal of the tripod were Mrs. John Oakman, Miss Marjorie Curtis, Miss Anna Hyatt, Miss Eleanor Lamson and Miss Margaret French. The incidental music for this scene was arranged by Kurt Schindler.

In the Venetian pageant there was first a Byzantine scene which had really no connection with Venice. It was a view of the Byzantine court with the Empress Theodora (Mrs. Peter Cooper Hewitt) and the Emperor Justinian (Reynour Cromwell) surrounded by a group of visiting Venetians. Those in the group were Mrs. Walter E. Maynard, Mrs. Reynour Cromwell, Mrs. Archer M. Huntington, Mrs.

Mrs. Alonso B. Potter, the Misses Mary Pearl Field, Bell E. Gurnee, Pauline Curley, Ruth Draper and Elsie Hasbrouck, the monks including Marshall R. Kernehan, Erskine Hewitt, Arthur Hyde, Frank Pollock, W. Franklyn Paris, Edmund J. Scheider, Gerard De Witt, Arthur Hammann, Arthur Sorenson and Herbert Gott.

There was also a band of angels in attendance on these holy people, represented by Mrs. Norrie Sellar, Mrs. John Cross, Mrs. Hasell Borwick, Mrs. Wendell Blagden, the Misses Emily Sloane, Elsie Pearson, Audrey Osborn, Augusta Bishop, Alda Chanler, Candace Hewitt and Maria Tomacelli. The accompanying music for this scene was by harp and organ.

There was a charming medieval scene representing the marriage of the Doge's daughter to Messer Vittor Bologna. Elena, the bride, was impersonated by Miss Angelica Schuyler Brown and the bridegroom by Francis Roche. Andreas de Segurua was the Bishop. Others in this scene, whose costumes were most artistic, were Mrs. Gordon Knox Bell, Mrs. W. Hamilton Russell, Mrs. W. Bourke Cockran, Mrs. William Greenough, Mrs. Amos R. E. Pinchot, Mrs. Harry T. Peters, Mrs. Harold Barclay, Mrs. Golet Gallatin, Mrs. John D. Prince, Mrs. Goodhue Livingston, Mrs. Charles R. Alexander, Mrs. Henry P. Godfrey, Miss Pauline Curley, Miss Julia Cutting, Lloyd Warren, Amos R. E. Pinchot, Harry T. Peters, Harold Barclay and Goodhue Livingston.

There followed a scene from the Renaissance period of Venice presenting the arrival of Caterina di Cornaro from Cyprus, this character being represented by Mrs. Richard Mortimer and the Doge who greeted her by Grant La Farke. In the group of attendants were Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Mrs. Charles B. Alexander, Mrs. Howard Cushing, who led us a leash a wonderful pair of Russian wolfhounds; Mrs. Francis H. Markoe, Mrs. E. Ringwood Hewitt, Mrs. Charles W. Leavitt, Miss Martha Gay, Monique Robinson, Frank Henderson, John J. Chapman, Donald Greenleaf, Harold H. Weekes, E. P. Gardner, Frederick C. MacDonell and Charles W. Leavitt.

To amuse those who gathered about the Doge's throne there was a troupe of Harlequins and Columbines represented by Mrs. Henry W. Miller, Miss Caroline Duer, Miss Virginia Mitchell, Justus W. Forman, Edmund Hackett, Payne Whitman, Sumner Gerard and Gordon Knox Bell.

Scene From Goldoni.

The last feature of the masque was a scene from Goldoni, the great Venetian writer of comedy, and in this Miss Lucrécia Hori and Andreas de Segurua gave an act from one of the Goldoni comedies. The attendant characters were Mrs. Harry Markoe, Mrs. James H. Eustis, Mrs. Joseph Earle Stevens, Mrs. John J. Chapman, Mrs. Golet Gallatin, Mrs. Charles de L. Oelrichs, Miss Diane del Monte, Miss Sylvia Wilder, Miss de Wolfe, Miss Fannie Cottent, Miss Julia Robbins, Walter E. Maynard, Oliver Harriman, W. Forbes Morgan, Jr., R. Stroppa, Quaglia, Charles de A. Oelrichs, Quintin Todd, Joseph Thomas and Edward Shippen 2d.

At the close of the masque William Faversham recited an epilogue and later the ballroom was cleared for general dancing.

Among those in the boxes: Mrs. A. Lanfer Norrie, Mr. and Mrs. Whitney Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Y. Dalziel, Mr. and Mrs. Gracie Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. P. Gray Griswold, Mrs. E. Henry Harriman, Mr. and Mrs. A. Masters MacDonald, Mrs. Richard Gamberelli, Mrs. John Innes Kane, Mr. and Mrs. A. Murray Young, Mr. and Mrs. J. Leigh Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. H. Duke, Mr. and Mrs. Percy R. Pyne, Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs, Mrs. Edward N. Breitung, Mrs. H. Hartley Jenkins, Mrs. Charles H. Otis, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Duke, Mr. and Mrs. John Asprenger, Mrs. Leo Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. R. Horace Gallatin, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram W. Sibley, Mr. and Mrs. A. Lewisohn, Mrs. Burke Roche, Miss Louise Sands, Mr. and Mrs. Marden J. Perry, Miss Leary, Mr. and Mrs. H. Fairfield Osborn, Mrs. William P. Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. Walter James, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Pell, W. MacNeill Rodewald, Mr. and Mrs. C. Blair Mitchell, Mrs. Moses Taylor Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. James Speyer, Miss Annie R. Jennings, Charles A. Munn, Stephen Birch, Charles E. Sampson, Mr. and Mrs. Elbert H. Gary, the Baroness de Meyer and Mrs. Charles Cooper.

ANTI-TIP BILL ADVANCES

Moves to Order of Final Passage in the Assembly.

ALBANY, March 15.—The anti-tipping bill introduced by Assemblyman Simpson of Kings was advanced to the order of final passage in the Assembly to-day after a motion by Democratic Leader Smith of New York to recommit had been defeated. The bill prohibits the tipping by waiters or patrons of a proprietor, lessee, agent, employee or servant in any hotel, restaurant, bar, saloon, bath house, public conveyance or common carrier on land or water, theatre or other place of public resort or amusement.

There are some things you can't stop by legislation," said Mr. Smith. "I mean to recommit the bill."

Mr. Simpson objected and was backed by most of the Republicans. The Democrats and Progressives voted with Mr. Smith.

LOCK OF LINCOLN'S HAIR GOES TO ART MUSEUM

Gen. James Grant Wilson Left Valuable Relics to the Metropolitan.

A lock of bloodstained hair taken from the head of Abraham Lincoln after his assassination is one of a large collection of relics, mementoes, photographs and medals which go to the Metropolitan Museum of Art under the will of Gen. James Grant Wilson, the distinguished civil war veteran who died at St. Luke's Hospital on February 1. The value of Gen. Wilson's estate was not indicated in the petition accompanying the will.

Among the articles left by Gen. Wilson to the Metropolitan Museum or the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society if the Metropolitan doesn't want them are Washington's gold sleeve links, a gold ring brought from Holland in 1647, a ring containing hair from the heads of Hamilton, Wellington, Napoleon Lincoln and Grant, a gold medal given to Gen. Wilson by the city of New York in 1903, a Waterloo medal bequeathed to the testator by Capt. Frederick Lehrs of the British army, sleeve links worn by Gen. Grant at the surrender of Vicksburg, a miniature of FitzGreene Hallcock received from the poet's sister, autographed portraits of King Edward VII and Lincoln and signed photographs of Gen. Grant, Admiral Farragut and Admiral Porter. Gen. Wilson asked that the relics forming this collection be known as the Wilson collection.

Gen. Wilson gave to his brother, Walter Sibbald Wilson, all autograph letters and the swords he carried in the civil war. To his sisters, Margaret Wilson and Mrs. Mary W. Fenly, Gen. Wilson gave a painting, "The Three Fates," attributed to an old master, and a painting of his father by Sir John Watson Gordon.

Gen. Wilson made no provision for his daughter, Mary M. K. Henry of Cleveland, because her mother gave her practically her entire estate and she receives an ample income from it. Gen. Wilson left his residuary estate to his second wife, Mrs. Mary H. Wilson, and gave her permission to sell thirty volumes, twenty photographs and twenty autograph letters from Longfellow, Lowell, Holmes and other poets. Her share in the estate will amount to about $5,000, it is said.

MAD DOG BITES THREE WHILE POLICE PURSUE

Rabid Collie Runs Through Passaic and Paterson—Fights Policeman.

PATERSON, N. J., March 18.—A collie suffering from rabies was killed to-day by Policeman John Gannon, while a fellow policeman, Anthony Kohn, was being torn by the animal. Kohn and two other persons bitten by the dog were taken to hospitals in Passaic and Paterson.

The dog first attacked Peter Fillipone of 14 Aspen street, Passaic, who was standing in front of the Municipal Building in that city. The collie bit him five times in the right hand and leg. Fillipone ran to police headquarters and notified Capt. Schmidt, who sent him to the General Hospital for treatment and detailed two policemen to find the dog.

Kohn was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where it was found he had been bitten fifteen times. The Lamella boy was taken to the same institution. His wounds were cauterized and they went home.

Inspector Fitzgerald of the Board of Health sent the dog's body to the Newark City Hospital for examination. Word was sent back that the dog had been suffering from rabies.

The Board of Health will send Policeman Kohn, Lamella and Phillips to New York for the Pasteur treatment.

PLEADS TO RICH WOMEN TO AID FIGHT ON VICE

Miss Davis Urges That Girls Released From Workhouse Be Helped.

Miss Katherine Bement Davis, Commissioner of Correction, urged 300 women at a special meeting of the Church Mission of Help yesterday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, 451 Madison avenue, to furnish clothing to old women when they are released from the workhouse.

"There are more than 100 women over 60 years of age who come to the workhouse every afternoon after time, and each time they are released they are in need of clothing," said Commissioner Davis. "The city makes no provision for clothing for these old women; they should be helped."

"The moral atmosphere among the girls and women at the workhouse is very bad and can be improved. Your visitors are doing all they can, but I wish you would send more visitors there."

"I believe that more attention to the follow work when women and girls leave the workhouse would reduce the number of women sent there. After a girl is released she needs friends and recreation. You can, I believe, furnish this much needed recreation in some way."

"Girls often go wrong because parents do not understand them. Parents are sometimes too severe."

Bishop Green presided at the meeting. Other speakers were the Rev. Dr. Lubbeck of Zion and St. Timothy Church, the Rev. Mr. Charles P. Tinker of the City Mission Society and Miss Emma L. Adams, secretary of the Church Mission of Help.

Among those present were Mrs. William Church Osborn, Mrs. Luther Kuntz, Mrs. J. Herman Aldrich, Mrs. Haley Pike, Mrs. W. K. Draper, Mrs. W. W. Hyde and Mrs. Seth Low.

McCombs Calls on the President.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—National Chairman William F. McCombs was the guest of President Wilson at luncheon in the White House to-day. Mr. McCombs came to Washington from New York this morning and left here this afternoon. It was reported that he talked over the advisability of reconsidering his rejection of Gov. Glynn's tender of a place on the New York Public Service Commission.

More Dressmakers on Strike.

About 1,000 of the striking children's dressmakers who quit in the independent shops gained their demands yesterday. Strikes were ordered in twenty-five more independent shops and factories.

DEVIL HAS FRIENDS IN NEW YORK, SAYS SUNDAY

Revivalist Asserts He Was Misquoted—Dr. Piper Also Issues Denial.

SCRANTON, Pa., March 18.—The Rev. William A. Sunday, who is conducting a revival here, issued the following statement to THE SUN to-night:

"New York's interest in religion was shown by the crowds that thronged Carnegie Hall. The ministers whom I had the privilege of meeting were kind to me. Dr. Piper denies that he made the statement attributed to him in criticism of me. You can find out about Pittsburgh for yourself. That's an open book for all the world's reading."

"One New York paper this morning utterly and shamelessly faked a statement from me when it had directly the contrary over my own signature. The devil evidently has faithful friends in New York."

Pittsburgh, March 18.—Dr. A. E. Piper of the Emory Methodist Episcopal Church of this city, who was reported in dispatches from New York as saying, "If you criticize Sunday he tells you to go to hell," said here to-night:

"I have been grossly misquoted in the newspaper reports with reference to my address before the New York Methodist Episcopal preachers' meeting last Monday morning and at the same time the New York preachers' meeting has also been misrepresented."

"I took occasion to say that Mr. Sunday was perfectly true to his bargain with the evangelistic committee in coming to Pittsburgh. He had simply insisted that all the expenses of the campaign be met and that he would be willing to take a free will offering on the last Sunday; that I understood that the actual expenses for the campaign had gone probably up to some $38,000 or $40,000, and that on the last Sunday he had received a free will offering of $45,000."

Mincola Jail Keeper Held in $15,000

MINCOLA, L. I., March 18.—John Conrad, an ex-keeper at the Nassau county jail, indicted for part in alleged orgy in the jail, surrendered this morning and was held in $15,000 bail by Supreme Court Justice Benedict. He furnished bail.

"Death Battle" Came Up To-day.

The case against Michael Goodman and David Alexander, accused of complicity in a "death rattle swindle," was adjourned until to-day by Magistrate Appleton in the Tombs police court yesterday so that a new complaint might be drawn.

DISCUSS PLAN TO BRIDGE AND TUNNEL HUDSON

Commissions From Both States Hear Cost Will Be $53,000,000.

The plan to build a bridge across the Hudson River at Fifty-seventh street and a vehicular tunnel at Canal street and the economies they would mean were discussed last night at a meeting at the Automobile Club of America. Members of the commissions on these projects, appointed by the States of New York and New Jersey, and engineers attended upon the invitation of the Motor Truck Club of America. A bill is now before the New Jersey Legislature to take care of that State's part in the financing of the two constructions.

The bridge is to cost $42,000,000 and the tunnel $11,000,000. The five northern counties of New Jersey—Bergen, Passaic, Essex, Hudson and Union, which in that State would benefit most directly by the plan, represent two-thirds of all the assessed wealth of New Jersey.

He believed the participation of New York in the bridge and tunnel was not a financial matter for the city as much as for the State.

MAY INJURE CADDIE FOR ONLY $4 A YEAR

Golfers See Invaluable Boon in New Insurance Plan of Fred Gwinn, Jr.

PROVIDES FOR BEREAVED

Policy Protects the Sportsman Should Ball End Career of Bright Boy.

Outside of the terrors of the nineteenth hole, almost the last of the grave dangers that accompany the ancient and royal game of golf has been brushed aside now that Freddie Gwinn, Jr., has perfected a brand new idea right out of his own head. Under the firm name of F. W. Gwinn, Jr., & Co., Freddie sits up in his office on the eighth floor at 34 Pine street doing marine insurance brokering when he isn't playing golf. One day, years ago, when Freddie was a mere lad, he delivered himself of the original idea of insuring folk against burglary, a kind of insurance which proved so popular that now more people than there are Sammies on Long Island or Sullivan's in Boston are enjoying all the pleasures of being robbed without any of the old time inconveniences.

Inasmuch as the idea of a society for the prevention of cruelty to caddies never has blossomed into being, Freddie Gwinn's unique and newest insurance idea is undoubtedly the first bit of kindness extended to the human caddie. From now on you may not only kill or maim a caddie, but the caddie dies happily in the knowledge that the old folks at home will be damaged money.

Let the latest Gwinn broadsheet, now being reeled off the job presses, speak for themselves in red and black type on yellow paper:

GOLF: Every golfer, professional or amateur, occasionally slices or pulls his tee shots or irons. These experienced golfers who stand too close or get in the way of a shot. Serious injury has been the result time after time. For Four Dollars per year we can offer you a liability contract with one of the oldest companies, which will protect you against any claims that may arise should you have the misfortune of inflicting anybody while playing golf.

It has been demonstrated occasionally that there are caddies who sometimes so far forget the Caddies Union rules that the caddie, absorbed in his reading matter or what not, actually gets within hailing distance of his player employer. Also it has been proved that a flying club or a ball whizzing through space with a 25 yard carry will injure a caddie unless club or ball hits him on the head.

All injured caddies have tall, muscular, quick tempered fathers, usually in the blacksmithing profession, who often look upon the killing or injury of their caddie sons as a sort of personal affront. There were one of Freddie Gwinn's slice and pull policies steps forward—just as father, the village blacksmith, comes toward you on the fair green bearing the sledhammer badge of his trade mercilessly across his arm. A note of introduction to Freddie, carrying with it an order for $5,000 or $10,000, damages, if presented at the psychological moment to the village blacksmith, will, it is expected, cause these hot tempered relatives of the late caddie to see things in their proper light.
